Rare Ancient Terracotta Arm and Hand
91 x 36 x 32 mm.

This is hollow, and preserved from just below the elbow to the tips of the fingers. It is highly stylized but very well made, with a minimal wrist, and fingers marked with grooves on a depressed surface.

This is part of a figurine of a being of roughly human form from the area where Afghanistan, Pakistan and China meet, and can be dated to c. 2000 B.C. from similarities of such figurines to related items of the Indus Valley civilization. This is from an unusually large figurine of its type, and is well preserved save for a small chip off the back of the fingers.

Handwritten notes and a large, stylized diagram or signature in the center. The diagram consists of several rows of repeating characters, possibly 'A' or 'B', arranged in a grid-like pattern with various lines and arrows. Below the diagram, the date '29/12/92' is written. To the right, the number '010067' is printed vertically. At the bottom right, there is a faint, illegible signature or stamp.

Cylinder Seal of Black Stone with White Streaks

31 x 17 mm.

The design consists of three standing figures: a god in short clothes on the right, a worshipper in long robe raising one hand in the middle, and a nude female frontally shown on the left. A spade symbol appears in front of the god on the right. A two-line cuneiform inscription names the ancient owner:

~~Ni-Binham, servant of (the goddess) Ninsit'anna~~
 Ninsit'anna is a name for Ishtar, Venus.

This is an Old Babylonian seal, c. 1900-1600 B.C. It has a rare stone but is not deeply cut, but it is in very good state of preservation.
